Bringing sustainability down to earth

One Day

Creating a Carbon Culture

Training

Overview

The need for organisations to address climate change is clear but the transition from ideas to actions can be a challenging one. This course helps participants understand: why organisations need to change; what is the basis for change; and how change be effectively implemented at all levels of an organisation. The course is underpinned by technical expertise, but focuses on the importance of creating clear messages and guaranteeing stakeholder commitment. The course is highly interactive and suitable for directors addressing sustainability at a strategic level, internal and external communications professionals or specialists working in the sustainability field.
